

September 2, 2012

To whom it may concern:

With the growing amount of foul language in movies and television, we find it very important that you require video and television providers to give third-parties access to accurate closed captions in real-time in order to provide innovations like foul language filtering technology that uses closed captions to detect and mute foul language.

We would appreciate your action in this matter.

Sincerely,
Justin Schaffer